Further information on UA 07/98 (AFR 17/01/98, 8 January 1998) and follow-ups (AFR 17/03/98, 15 January 1998, AFR 17/04/98, 4 March 1998) - Prisoner of conscience / Health concern / Cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment

CAMEROON Pius Njawé, journalist, director of Le Messenger
Michel Michaut Moussala, journalist, director of *Aurore Plus

On 14 April 1998, following Pius Njawé's appeal against his conviction and sentence, the Court of Appeal in Douala announced the reduction of his sentence to one year's imprisonment.

Amnesty International is therefore repeating its call for Pius Njawé's immediate and unconditional release amid serious concerns for his health and safety while in detention. Prison conditions in Cameroon deny basic rights and often amount to cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment. Most prisons are severely overcrowded, sanitary facilities are non-existent or inadequate, and health care and nutrition are also seriously deficient. Disease is rife and there is a high mortality rate among prisoners.

Pius Njawé was arrested on 24 December 1997 following an article in Le Messenger two days earlier which had raised questions concerning the state of health of President Paul Biya. Although two days later the newspaper published the government's denial that President Biya was ill, on 26 December Pius Njawé was charged with propagation de fausses nouvelles, dissemination of false news, and sent to the Central Prison, New Bell, in Douala. On 13 January 1998 he was convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment and a fine. The fine was also reduced on appeal.

Amnesty International believes that Pius Njawé has been imprisoned solely because of his legitimate professional activities and in violation of his right to freedom of expression. More than 30 court cases have been brought against Le Messenger since 1990, almost all of them by the government.

Michel Michaut Moussala, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and a fine after being convicted of diffamation, defamation, at the same trial as Pius Njawé in January 1998 has not yet been arrested and imprisoned.

FURTHER RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send telegrams/faxes/express/airmail letters in French, English or in your own language:

- noting that Pius Njawé's prison sentence has been reduced by the Court of Appeal in Douala but repeating your call for his immediate and unconditional release as a prisoner of conscience;
- expressing serious concern about the harsh conditions in which he is being held which pose a threat to his safety and health and urging immediate action to ensure that he is held in conditions which conform to international standards for the treatment of prisoners;
- urging that he be allowed regular access to members of his family, lawyers and his doctors;
- expressing concern at the continuing attacks on freedom of expression in Cameroon and urging that neither Michel Michaut Moussala nor any other journalist be imprisoned as prisoners of conscience;
- reminding the Government of its obligation to guarantee freedom of expression, including under Article 19 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, which it ratified in 1984.
