Amnesty International has received further information on the arrest of Didi Mwati Bulambo, a prisoner of conscience arrested on 25 July 1996, and is concerned by the related arrests of Kyalosho Kalunda, Donatien Mazambi and Lambert Mbunganyi, who are being held in the prison at Kamituga in Mwenga Zone of Zaire's South Kivu region. Amnesty International has confirmed reports of torture, in particular whippings, being used regularly in the prison.

Didi Mwati Bulambo was transferred from the prison at Kamituga to Bukavu town, the capital of South Kivu region, under military escort on 30 July. The following day, he was released pending trial on a bail of 5 million Nouveau Zaires (about $US 120) under the orders of the Public Prosecutor (procureur général). He is forbidden to leave Bukavu town, and is charged with several offences, including "outrage" for having insulted the Public Prosecutor's office, an offence that carries a maximum sentence of six months in Zaire.

Three other workers at CADDHOM were arrested on 21 August at Kamituga when they published an edition of the organization's newsletter Mwangaza after defying a summons forbidding them to publish or distribute copies of the newsletter. They are currently being held in the prison at Kamituga and are reportedly being beaten. The office of CADDHOM has been closed down by members of the armed forces and the motorbike used by CADDHOM's workers has been impounded by the authorities.

Didi Mwati Bulambo has been undergoing hospital treatment for injuries and illnesses sustained as a result of whippings and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment whilst he was detained in the prison at Kamituga.

FURTHER RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send telegrams/telexes/express or airmail letters in French/Swahili/English or in your own language:

- expressing concern about the allegations of torture and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment taking place at the prison in Kamituga;
- urging that an immediate inquiry be launched into the allegations and that steps be taken to identify those responsible and bring them to justice;
- calling for all charges against Didi Mwati Bulambo to be dropped;
- calling for the immediate and unconditional release of the three other CADDHOM workers; stating that all three are prisoners of conscience, held solely for having exercised their right to freedom of expression in a non-violent manner.
