Fear forBOLIVIADr Waldo Albarracín, lawyer, human rights defender
His family

Amnesty International is extremely concerned for the safety of Dr Waldo Albarracín and his family. Dr Albarracín, a prominent human rights activist and president of the organization Asamblea Permanente de Derechos Humanos de Bolivia, Bolivian Permanent Human Rights Assembly, was abducted and tortured by police officers in January 1997. He and his family have been receiving death threats connected with the prosecution of a number of the police officers involved.

On 24 September 1999 the police officers charged with torturing Dr Albarracín were due to appear at a hearing at the 10th Criminal Court [Juzgado Décimo de Instrucción en lo Penal] in the capital, La Paz. That day the family received an anonymous telephone call. The caller asked for Dr Albarracín's nine-year-old son by name, and referred to the killing and rape of a girl which had occurred a few days earlier, clearly implying a death threat.

On 29 September the Asamblea Permanente de Derechos Humanos de Bolivia wrote to Bolivia's Minister of Government (Ministro de Gobierno), Walter Guiteras Dennis, denouncing the most recent threats and calling for steps to guarantee Dr Albarracín and his family's safety. This was the latest in a series of communications sent by the Asamblea to the minister on the same issue this year. Despite repeated calls by Amnesty International and other human rights organizations, previous death threats to Waldo Albarracín and his family have not been investigated. Moreover, three of the police officers charged with Dr Albarracín's abduction and torture remain in active service, despite the fact that under Article 12 of the Bolivian Constitution (Constitución Política del Estado) any person involved in torture should be suspended from duty immediately.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Dr Waldo Albarracín was abducted on 25 January 1997 by eight police officers and subjected to several hours of beatings and death threats. Amnesty International believes that his abduction and torture was connected with his human rights work. Since then Dr Albarracín and his family have been subjected to death threats and intimidation, and were eventually forced to move home.

The United Nations Human Rights Commission has repeatedly emphasized the importance of taking serious steps against impunity. In particular it has recommended that members of the security forces involved in human rights violations should be suspended from active duty while judicial investigations are carried out, and that the suspension should continue until investigations are completed.

Dr Albarracín and his family have been the subject of a number of Urgent Actions (see UA 27/97, 28 January 1997, AMR 18/02/97 and follow-ups: 21 February 1997, AMR 18/04/97; 19 March 1997, AMR 18/06/97; 14 April 1997, AMR 18/07/97; 12 September 1997, AMR 18/11/97; UA 40/98, 10 February 1998, AMR 18/01/98; and the external document Bolivia: Undermining human rights work, AI Index AMR 18/10/97, May 1997.)
