TURKMENISTAN

Sapardurdy Khadzhev (m), aged 47

Early on 14 September, officers from the Ministry of National Security of Turkmenistan informed Ogulsapar Muradova's relatives that she had died in custody. Amnesty International is concerned at allegations that she was subjected to torture and ill-treatment in detention and urges the authorities to conduct a thorough, prompt and independent investigation into her death.

Several officers from the Ministry of National Security came to Ogulsapar Muradova's flat early on 14 September and informed her three adult children, Berdy, Maral and Sona, of her death, before taking the three to the morgue in the capital, Ashgabat, where police officers were reportedly also present. The Ministry of National Security officers reportedly refused to disclose any information about the circumstances of her death, including the date when she died. The Ministry of National Security officers and police officers reportedly urged them to sign her death certificate. However, Berdy, Maral and Sona refused, and demanded to see her body first before signing the paper. Tadzhegul Begmedova, exiled director of the human rights group Turkmenistan Helsinki Foundation, told Amnesty International: "The officers shouted at them and said, 'If you don't sign this you will never see her body.'"

Later, when the relatives returned to the morgue accompanied by a foreign diplomat, they were allowed to see Ogulsapar Muradova's body. Tadzhegul Begmedova told Amnesty International: "They saw a huge wound on her forehead and marks on her neck."

Despite persistent attempts by the relatives of Ogulsapar Muradova, Annakurban Amanklychev and Sapardurdy Khadzhev to visit them in detention they have not been able to see them since their arrest in June. Ogulsapar Muradova's death heightens Amnesty International's concerns for the safety of Annakurban Amanklychev and Sapardurdy Khadzhev.

Ogulsapar Muradova, Annakurban Amanklychev and Sapardurdy Khadzhev were sentenced to terms of imprisonment in an unfair trial on 25 August. There are strong indications that the charges brought against them were fabricated to punish them for their human rights activities.
