FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA

new names: Dušan Nari_, parliamentary deputy Ljubiša Brki_, town councillor

On 28 January 1997 police reportedly beat demonstrators in the town of Smederevska Palanka, including a parliamentary deputy, Dušan Nari_, and local councillor Ljubiša Brki_. Opposition sources in the town claimed "not even women and children were spared the beatings".

The demonstration was reportedly held after a new town council was convened that day by councillors from the ruling Socialist Party of Serbia. The opposition coalition Zajedno believes it won local elections in Smederevska Palanka; its claim was supported in December 1996 by the findings of a fact-finding mission from the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), which had been invited by the government.

FURTHER RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send telegrams/telexes/faxes/express/airmail letters in English, French, German and Russian or in your own language:

- expressing concern at the reports of beatings by police of demonstrators, Dušan Nari_ and Ljubiša Brki_, in the town of Smederevska Palanka on 28 January;
- calling for a prompt, thorough and impartial investigation into this and other recent reports of ill-treatment by police of demonstrators in the towns of Smederevo, Kragujevac and Kraljevo (see original UA) and for any officer found responsible to be brought to justice;
- urging the immediate and unconditional release of anyone who remains in detention for the non-violent exercise of his or her right to freedom of assembly and freedom of expression;
- emphasising that Articles 19 and 21 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (which the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia recognizes as legally binding) guarantee the rights to freedom of expression and freedom of peaceful assembly, and urging the authorities to ensure that these rights are upheld.
