Executions in Saudi Arabia continue at an alarming rate. The 10 people named above were executed or had limbs amputated between 11 and 17 July 2000. So far this year Saudi Arabia has executed 71 people. It is impossible to know the names of all those on death row or how many face execution in the coming days and weeks.

Of those executed this year 26 have been Saudi Arabian and 42 foreign nationals, from Nigeria, Bangladesh, India, Indonesia, Pakistan, Sudan, Eritrea, Yemen, the Philippines, Ethiopia, Egypt, Iraq and Syria. The nationality of three others is not known.

The number of reported amputations as punishment has also increased significantly this year. To date Amnesty International has recorded 33 amputations, seven of which have been cross amputations - amputation of the right hand and left foot. The organization recorded two amputations in the whole of 1999.

While Amnesty International does not know how many people are on death row or how many face amputation, the organization fears that there are many more people currently in Saudi Arabian prisons, who could lose their lives or limbs tomorrow, or at any time in the weeks and months to come. Most, if not all, will have been sentenced after grossly unfair trials in which even the most basic rights, such as the right to be defended by a lawyer and the right to an effective appeal, are denied. They may also have been convicted solely on the basis of confessions obtained under duress, torture or deception.

Amnesty International recognizes the right and responsibility of all governments to bring to justice those guilty of recognizably criminal offences. However, Amnesty International is fundamentally opposed to the death penalty as the ultimate violation of the right to life and considers the cruel, inhuman and degrading punishment of judicial amputation to be a form of torture. The organization is committed to defending all people against the violations of these fundamental and internationally recognized rights, in line with Articles 3 and 5 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

This Urgent Action is the last in a series of weekly preventative death penalty and amputations actions issued in the past few weeks. Amnesty International would like to thank all those who have taken part.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Saudi Arabia applies the death penalty for a wide range of offences which, in addition to violent crimes, include some with no lethal consequences, such as sorcery and drug-related offences. Punishment by amputation is applied in Saudi Arabia mainly for theft, for which the sentence is amputation of the right hand, and highway robbery, which is punished by cross amputation. Under international human rights standards the use of these punishments is contrary to the prohibition of torture and other cruel punishments.

RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send telegrams/telexes/faxes/express/airmail letters in English or your own language:

- expressing dismay at the continuing use of the death penalty and amputations in Saudi Arabia, and calling for an immediate halt to these punishments, and for all such outstanding sentences to be commuted;
- urging that international standards for capital trials are strictly observed.
