FEAR OF DISAPPEARANCE OF ACTIVIST AND FAMILY

Hada, a human rights activist from Inner Mongolia, his wife Xinna and their son Uiles have been detained in northern China and their fate and current whereabouts are unknown. Amnesty International fears they may be subjected to enforced disappearance.

Hada was due to be released from prison on 10 December 2010, on completion of his 15-year prison sentence for “splittism” and “espionage”. His wife Xinna and their son Uiles were detained prior to his expected release date. His other relatives, including his sister-in-law Naraa and his uncle Haschuluu, who were waiting to be reunited with him upon his release, did not receive any information about him on the day.

On 11 December 2010, Naraa received a CD that contained five photos showing Hada having a dinner with Xinna and Uiles. The photos were dated 10 December 2010. Naraa told the Southern Mongolia Human Rights Information Center (SMHRIC) that she believed that based on the clothes seen on Xinna and Uiles, the photos were recent. The same photos had also been anonymously posted on Chinese overseas dissident website Boxun.com.

On 13 December 2010, Haschuluu received an SMS purportedly from Hada urging him not to worry and claiming that both he and Uiles had been released. Haschuluu never received a response to his reply to the sender.

On 14 December 2010, an official from the Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region Public Security Bureau visited Naraa and told her that the Public Security Bureau had delivered the photos to Naraa. They also told her that Hada and his family were “enjoying a family re-union” in a “five star luxury hotel” and that they needed “a bit [of time] to plan their next step”. The official did not tell her the hotel name, its location or how long “a bit” was likely to be.

Since the detention of Xinna and Uiles, Naraa and Haschuluu have been the only sources of information about the situation of Hada and his family, but it appears that their channels for communication have been cut, as all phone calls to them have gone unanswered since at least 18 December 2010.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Hada was detained on 11 December 1995. The Hohhot Intermediate People's Court found him guilty of "splittism" and "espionage" following an unfair trial and sentenced him to 15 years' imprisonment on 11 November 1996. Amnesty International considered him a prisoner of conscience and campaigned for his immediate and unconditional release.

Hada was held in Chifeng Prison in Ulaanhad (in Chinese: Chifeng) Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region. In 2004, an inmate who was released from Chifeng Prison reported that Hada was routinely abused there, subjected to disciplinary punishments ranging from solitary confinement to being chained onto a metal "shackle board" in prison (see <http://www.amnesty.org/en/library/info/ASA17/004/2005/en>)

Before his detention, Hada was the general manager of the Mongolian Academic Bookshop in Hohhot. His imprisonment was related to his involvement in an organization called the Southern Mongolian Democratic Alliance (SMDA), which aimed to promote human rights, Mongolian culture and "a high degree of autonomy for China's minority nationalities, as guaranteed in [China's] Constitution".

In 2002, Uiles (Hada's son, born in 1984) was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for his alleged involvement in a robbery. Whilst in prison, he was said to have been pressured to cut ties to his parents.

Xinna, Hada's wife, was detained on 4 December 2010 at the family-run bookstore. The police informed Uiles that she was being held at the Inner Mongolia No. 1 Detention Centre in Hohhot, the regional capital (in Chinese: Huhehaote). The police also raided the bookstore warehouse and detained Uiles. Uiles was released on the same day shortly before midnight and told the SMHRIC that the police had pressured him to agree to not to disseminate any information about himself or his family over the phone or on the internet; to sever his relationship with his parents, and; not to carry out any separatist activities like his father had done.

Uiles was detained again in the morning of 5 December 2010. Naraa, Hada's sister-in-law, later received a notice from the Public Security authorities stating that Xinna was held on suspicion of running an illegal business and that Uiles was suspected of being involved in dealing drugs.

In November 2010, the authorities placed writer and activist Huuchinhuu under illegal house arrest. She had been planning a party for Hada upon his release. Another Inner Mongolian activist, Arslan, who also had been planning a gathering to celebrate Hada's anticipated release from prison is also under house arrest.
