

POL 32/008/2004 – Postcard

Human Rights Education is fun, exciting and the most important thing you'll ever learn. Ask your teacher to help you send a postcard to your government asking them to make sure you know your rights.

Dear Minister,

I want to learn about my human rights.

Please make sure my school teaches me about them and has the resources and support of the government to make this an important part of school life by January 2006.

My government has a duty under international law* to teach me regularly about human rights so I can protect my own rights and those of my friends, my family and others.

Name

Age

School

I have a right to be taught my rights!

*Human rights education as a right is affirmed in many international treaties, including the Convention on the Rights of the Child (Article 29)

Illustration by: Ana Ortegon. © Ana Ortegon/AI

AI Index: POL 32/008/2004

Amnesty International, International Secretariat, Peter Benenson House, 1 Easton Street, London WC1X 0DW

www.amnesty.org/hre