UA 134/07 Fear for safety

MEXICO Isidoro Pío Ortiz, (m), union activist
Other members of the Sindicato Nacional de Trabajadores y Empacadores de Importadoras y Empacadoras de Alimentos Ultramarinos, Aceites y Derivados de la República Mexicana (National Union of Workers of Industries Importing and Packing Groceries, Oils and Derivatives)

Trade union activist Isidoro Pío Ortiz was reportedly abducted, beaten and threatened with death by members of a rival trade union on 15 May in front of the factory where he works, in the town Ecatepec, Mexico State. Other members of the same trade union are in danger of intimidation and assault.

According to reports, on 15 May, factory employee Isidoro Pío Ortiz was distributing information leaflets about his union, Sindicato Nacional de Trabajadores y Empacadores de Importadoras y Empacadoras de Alimentos Ultramarinos, Aceites y Derivados de la República Mexicana, in front of the food processing plant. An unknown number of members of the existing union at the factory, the Sindicato de Trabajadores de la Industria del Café, Productos Alimenticios y Similares del Estado de México, and three others, grabbed him and forced him into a van. While the van was driven around the area for half an hour, the assailants beat Isidoro Pío Ortiz in the back of the van, telling him to stop supporting the newer union or they would kill him.

In August 2006, dissident workers at a multinational food processing factory based in Ecatepec, joined a new trade union, the Sindicato Nacional de Trabajadores y Empacadores de Importadoras y Empacadoras de Alimentos Ultramarinos, Aceites y Derivados de la República Mexicana (National Union of Workers of Industries Importing and Packing Groceries, Oils and Derivatives), as they felt that the existing union representing workers at the factory, the Sindicato de Trabajadores de la Industria del Café, Productos Alimenticios y Similares del Estado de México, affiliated to Confederacion Revolucionaria de Obreros y Campesinos (Revolutionary Federation of Workers and Farmers, CROC) was not adequately defending their labour rights. The workers' decision to join the new union has caused an ongoing dispute over which union should represent the factory's workers in collective negotiations with the factory management on pay, benefits and working conditions.

Previously, members of the newer union at the factory had alleged in the national press that in September 2006, a group of 200 people were paid to beat and intimidate them on the day when workers at the factory were due to vote on which union should represent them in the collective negotiations with the factory managers.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Mexico is home to many maquiladoras, or factories owned by transnational companies who are seeking to take advantage of favourable manufacturing and trading conditions. Officially recognised trade unions are frequently used to prevent the establishment of independent trade unions or to enforce agreements imposed by management or local governments. Dissident workers who try to establish independent trade unions may face threat or harassment for their legitimate union activities.

RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send appeals to arrive as quickly as possible, in Spanish or your own language:

- expressing concern at the beating and harassment of union activist Isidoro Pío Ortiz on 15 May in Ecatepec;
- expressing concern for the safety of members of the Sindicato Nacional de Trabajadores y Empacadores de Importadoras y Empacadoras de Alimentos Ultramarinos, Aceites y Derivados de la República Mexicana;

- calling for a full, prompt and impartial investigation into the abduction and beating of Isidoro Pío Ortiz, with the results made public and those responsible brought to justice;
- reminding the authorities that the UN Declaration on the Rights and Responsibility of Individuals, Groups and Organs of Society to Promote and Protect Universally Recognized Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms recognizes the legitimacy of the activities of human rights defenders and their right to carry out their activities without any restrictions or fear of reprisals.
