UA 187/05 Fear of torture or ill-treatment/ Possible prisoners of conscience

OMAN Abdullah Al Riyami (m), aged 40, writer
Taiba al Mawali (f), former member of parliament

Writer Abdullah Al Riyami and former member of parliament Taiba al Mawali have both been detained in the capital Muscat. Abdullah Al Riyami may be held incommunicado and is at risk of torture or ill-treatment. Amnesty International believes that they may both be prisoners of conscience, held solely for the non-violent expression of their beliefs.

According to reports, the section of the police headquarters responsible for internal security contacted Abdullah Al Riyami on 11 July, summoning him to the headquarters the following day. On 12 July, a police officer reportedly escorted him from the police headquarters back to his home, where he left his mobile phone. He has not been seen since. It is not known why he was summoned to the police station, but it is believed that it may be connected to his criticism of the government. In 2004, he was reportedly banned from publishing any poems or articles. This followed his criticism of the government during an appearance on Iranian television station, Al-Alam.

Taiba al Mawali was reportedly arrested at the beginning of June and later sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment by a Lower Court in Muscat on 13 July in connection with her criticisms of the government. Amnesty International has no information about where she is detained. She reportedly acted as an observer at the trial in May 2005 of 31 prisoners of conscience arrested in early 2005 (see UA 26/05, MDE 20/002/2005, 28 January 2005, and follow-up). The men were sentenced to prison terms ranging between seven and 20 years but were pardoned by the Sultan of Oman in June and have since been released.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Mass arrests and incommunicado detention of political opponents of the government of Oman has often led to allegations of torture and ill-treatment. Torture and ill-treatment may be used during interrogation in order to obtain information about political suspects or for use as evidence in court to obtain convictions following unfair trials
