LOCKED UP FOR DEMANDING WOMEN'S RIGHTS

For much of her life, Nassima al-Sada has campaigned for women's freedom in Saudi Arabia. Now, she's lost her own. She's one of 13 prominent female activists prosecuted for demanding women's right to drive and the right to carry out their daily business without the permission of a male "guardian". Since her arrest in July 2018, she has been locked up, enduring ill-treatment and solitary confinement – all for her peaceful efforts to defend women's rights.
