THE DEATH PENALTY
LIST OF ABOLITIONIST AND RETENTIONIST COUNTRIES
(JULY 1997)

More than half the countries in the world have abolished the death penalty in law or practice.

Attached is a list of countries, indicating whether or not their laws provide for the death penalty. For abolitionist countries, information is also given, where available, on the date of abolition and the date of the last execution carried out; and for countries which have abolished the death penalty for all crimes, the date when it was abolished for ordinary offences if this was done before. (The date given for abolition is normally the date when the decision to abolish the death penalty was taken, but if that decision only came into effect several years later, the latter date is given.)

Also attached is a list of countries which have abolished the death penalty in law since 1976. It shows that in recent years, an average of two countries a year have abolished the death penalty in law or, having done so for ordinary offences, have gone on to abolish it for all offences.

The list has been compiled on the basis of information available to Amnesty International as of 10 July 1997. It is an updated version of the March 1997 List of Abolitionist and Retentionist Countries (AI Index: ACT 50/03/97) and shows that Hong Kong has been removed from the list of abolitionist countries following its reversion to China as a special administrative region. Amnesty International understands that Hong Kong S.A.R. will remain abolitionist.

Following the change of government in Zaire, the country has been renamed the Democratic Republic of Congo.

Any further changes or corrections will be issued as necessary.

The number of abolitionist and retentionist countries is now as follows:

Abolitionist for all crimes	57
Abolitionist for ordinary crimes only		15
Abolitionist de facto	27
Total abolitionist in law or practice		99
