

EXTERNAL (for general distribution)

AI Index: AFR 31/10/92
Distr: UA/SC

26 August 1992

Further information on UA 60/92 (AFR 31/01/92, 19 February 1992) - and follow-up(s): AFR 31/03/92, 10 March 1992; AFR 31/04/92, 24 April 1992 and correction to AFR 31/04/92, 28 April 1992 - Legal concern

CÔTE D'IVOIRE: Martial Ahipeaud, President of Fédération estudiantine et scolaire de Côte d'Ivoire (FESCI), Ivorian Federation of Students and School Pupils
Laurent Gbagbo, leader of the opposition Front populaire ivoirien (FPI), Ivorian Popular Front
Simone Gbagbo, wife of Laurent Gbagbo
Laurent Akoun, former president of the Syndicat national des Enseignants du Secondaire de Côte d'Ivoire (SYNESCI), National Union of Secondary School Teachers, and leading member of FPI
René Dégny Ségui, President of the Ligue ivoirienne des Droits de l'Homme, (LIDHO), Ivorian League of Human Rights and Gnato Zerebi, leading member of FESCI

René Molle Molle, FPI parliamentarian
Louis Dacoury Tabley, member of FPI secretariat
Raymond Koudou Kessi, leading member of Syndicat national des Enseignants du supérieur (SYNARES), National Union of University Teachers
Georges Coffy, an opposition journalist
Lazare Koffi Koffi, secretary of the FPI section in Adzope
Marius Koutezan, chairman of the FPI's youth

At least 77 prisoners of conscience, including all those listed above, were released on 31 July 1992, two days after an amnesty law was unanimously passed by the National Assembly. They had been serving sentences ranging from one to three years,

They had been convicted between February and April 1992 of "sharing responsibility" for criminal damage caused during demonstrations in February in the capital, Abidjan. The demonstrators were protesting against the government's refusal to act upon the findings of a Commission of Inquiry into human rights violations committed during an army raid on Yopougon University campus in May 1991. Although the demonstrations began peacefully, they later resulted in violence, which some observers claim was provoked by government agents.

The amnesty law pardons all past offences in connection with the restoration of multi-party democracy, including attending banned meetings and marches or writing anti-government articles, as well as violence during demonstrations or by the security forces.

Please send no further appeals. Thank you to all those who sent appeals on their behalf.