Fear of torture or ill-treatment / medical concern

16 January 2003

UGANDA

Dan Mugarura (m), approximately aged 45, Retired Army Lieutenant Pascal Gakyaro (m), aged 50, Civil Aviation Authority supervisor

Amnesty International is concerned for the safety of the two men named above. They are being held in incommunicado detention at an unknown location and are at risk of torture or ill treatment.

Dan Mugarura was arrested without a warrant, on 8 January at his home in the capital Kampala by armed security agents in civilian clothes. The security personnel who arrested him claimed they were taking him to Central Police Station in Kampala. However, his current location is unknown and the authorities will not tell his wife where he is being held. He reportedly suffers from high blood pressure, which requires constant medication.

Pascal Gakyaro was arrested on 12 January at his home in Kajiansi, near Kampala, by armed security agents, allegedly from the Chieftaincy of Military Intelligence (CMI). Some officers from the Criminal Investigation Department and the President's office were among those who signed a certificate authorizing a search of Pascal Gakyaro's home following his arrest. However, the Ugandan authorities approached by his family have denied his arrest and detention.

Both men are supporters of the Reform Agenda, an opposition political group. Pascal Gakyaro was a supporter of the exiled former presidential candidate, retired Colonel Kizza Besigye in the 2001 elections. He reportedly provided logistical support to Kizza Besigye during the election campaign.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Amnesty International is concerned about increasing incidents of harassment, arrest and incommunicado detention of opposition supporters. Between 7 and 12 January 2003, six other Reform Agenda supporters were arrested and detained in similar circumstances, although they have since been given access to their families and lawyers.
