Yeng Virak, Director of the Community Legal Education Center (CLEC), was released on bail on 11 January. He has been charged with criminal defamation in connection with comments critical of the government allegedly written on a banner displayed at a 10 December rally for International Human Rights Day. The investigating judge has reportedly found that Yeng Virak was not involved with the banner, but the charge against him has not been dropped. It is punishable by one year's imprisonment

Kem Sokha and Pa Nguon Teang are facing the same charge. Under Cambodian law they may be held for up to six months before they go on trial. Kem Sokha, President of the Cambodian Center for Human Rights (CCHR), was arrested at the CCHR office in the capital, Phnom Penh, on 31 December. Yeng Virak was arrested at his office around two hours later. Pa Nguon Teang, the CCHR's Acting Director, was arrested in Stung Treng Province on 4 January and taken to Phnom Penh.

Mam Sonando, manager of Beehive Radio (Sambok Khmum), was arrested on 11 October 2005 over an interview with a Paris-based group called Cambodia's Border Committee, which criticised the government's border policies. He was charged with criminal defamation, disinformation and incitement to commit a crime, for which he could be sentenced to several years in prison.

On 14 October, warrants were issued for the arrest of four leaders of the Cambodian Watchdog Council, a lobby group affiliated to the opposition Sam Rainsy Party, which had signed a written statement, criticising the border agreement with Viet Nam. Rong Chhun, President of the Cambodian Independent Teachers' Association, was arrested the next day as he attempted to flee the country. He was charged with criminal defamation and incitement, and could face several years in prison. Chea Mony, Ea Channa and Men Nath are sheltering abroad.

Amnesty International considers Kem Sokha, Pa Nguon Teang, Rong Chhun and Mam Sonando to be prisoners of conscience.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The coalition government under the leadership of Prime Minister Hun Sen, in power since July 2004, has been stepping up efforts to stifle peaceful dissent over the past year.

Cambodia is a state party to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and all the other core international human rights treaties, and has thus committed to respect and protect the rights to freedom of expression, assembly and association. These rights are also protected under the Cambodian constitution.
