Death penalty

30 April 1997

EGYPTAhmad Hassan 'Ali Isma'il

Ahmad Hassan 'Ali Isma'il, who had been sentenced to death in absentia in 1996 for a murder committed in 1995, was reportedly arrested on 18 April 1997 by members of the security forces in the Cairo suburb of al-Sayida Zaynab. He has been brought before the Public Prosecutor's Office in Cairo, prior to being transferred to prison. Amnesty International believes that he is at imminent risk of execution.

Four individuals tried in the same case had already been executed after having been found guilty of murder.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The death penalty, which is applied in Egypt for criminal offences such as drug use or trafficking and murder, and for offences related to "terrorism", has been used extensively in the country in recent years. So far this year Amnesty International has recorded 15 death sentences passed by military, criminal and (Emergency) State Security courts. Three people sentenced to death in previous years have been executed during the same period. Furthermore, since October 1992 when President Hosni Mubarak began issuing special decrees referring civilians to be tried by military courts, 74 death sentences have been passed by such courts and 54 executions have been carried out.

Death sentences in criminal cases are submitted to the Mufti for approval. This is a routine measure, as he approves the vast majority of them. They are then passed on to the President or his nominee for ratification. Final verdicts by criminal courts can be appealed against before the Court of Cassation only when it can be proved that there were procedural irregularities in the trial. The death sentences issued by military courts are subject to ratification by the President of the Republic, and then review by the Military Appeals Bureau, also headed by the President of the Republic.

RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send telegrams/telexes/express/airmail letters in Arabic, English, French, or your own language:

- acknowledging the seriousness of the crime for which Ahmad Hassan 'Ali Isma'il was convicted, but explaining your opposition to the death penalty in all cases as a violation of the right to life, pointing out that it has never been shown to have a unique deterrent effect and is brutalizing to all involved in its application;
- urging the President to use his constitutional powers to grant clemency and commute this and all other pending death sentences;
- drawing attention to world trends to abolish or reduce the use of the death penalty, in accordance with Article 6 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, to which Egypt is a state party.
