Five of the seven men named above, including two who had been convicted of crimes they allegedly committed while aged 17, were executed on 10 May in the city of Madina. The remaining two men, Bilal Bin Muslih Bin Jabir al-Muwallad and Ahmad Hamid Muhammad Sabir, who were sentenced to flogging and imprisonment in the same case, are at risk of being flogged at any time.

All seven men were arrested in 2004 and charged with theft, robbery and assault. They were held incommunicado at police stations in the city of Madina, where they were allegedly beaten in an attempt to make them confess.

In February 2008, the General Court in Madina sentenced five of the men to death: Sultan Bin Khalid Mahmud al-Maskati, Yusef Bin Hassan Bin Salman al-Muwallad, Qassim Bin 'Ali Bin Ibrahim Al-Nakhli, Sultan Bin Sulayman Bin Muslim al-Muwallad and 'Issa Bin Muhammad 'Umar Muhammad. Two of the men – Sultan Bin Sulayman Bin Muslim al-Muwallad and 'Issa Bin Muhammad 'Umar Muhammad – were aged 17 at the time of their alleged crimes. The Court of Cassation in Makkah upheld all of their sentences in July 2008.

The General Court sentenced the two remaining men to “severe flogging” and 15 years’ imprisonment. Bilal Bin Muslih Bin Jabir al-Muwallad, who was 15 at the time of the alleged offences, was sentenced to 1,500 lashes. Ahmad Hamid Muhammad Sabir, who was 13 at the time of the alleged offences, was sentenced to 1,250 lashes. The “severe lashes” are to be administered in instalments at 10-day intervals in public at the scene of the offences.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Saudi Arabia is a state party to the Convention on the Rights of the Child, which expressly prohibits the execution of juvenile offenders – those convicted of crimes committed when they were under 18. It is also a state party to the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, which expressly prohibits the use of punishments such as flogging.

At least 158 people, including 76 foreign nationals, were executed by the Saudi Arabian authorities in 2007, and at least 102 people, including almost 40 foreign nationals, were executed in 2008. Since the beginning of 2009, a further 36 people are known to have been executed.

Saudi Arabia applies the death penalty for a wide range of offences. Court proceedings fall far short of international standards for fair trial. Defendants are rarely allowed formal representation by a lawyer, and in many cases are not informed of the progress of legal proceedings against them. Prisoners under sentence of death may not be informed of the date of execution until the morning when they are taken out and beheaded. They may be convicted solely on the basis of confessions obtained under duress or deception.

In a recent report on the use of the death penalty in Saudi Arabia, Amnesty International highlighted the extensive use of the death penalty as well as the disproportionately high number of executions of foreign nationals from developing countries. RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send appeals to arrive as quickly as possible, in Arabic or English or your own language:

- expressing dismay that the five men named above were executed;
- expressing particular concern that two of them, Sultan Bin Sulayman Bin Muslim al-Muwallad and 'Issa Bin Muhammad 'Umar Muhammad, had been convicted of crimes they allegedly committed while aged 17, and that, by executing them, Saudi Arabia had breached its obligations under the Convention on the Rights of the Child;
- calling for the sentences of flogging against Bilal Bin Muslih Bin Jabir al-Muwallad and Ahmad Hamid Muhammad Sabir to be commuted to a humane punishment, particularly given Saudi Arabia's obligations as a state party to the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment.
