URGENT ACTION

RISK OF PROTEST-RELATED EXECUTIONS AFTER UNFAIR TRIALS
At least eight individuals in Iran are under sentence of death in connection with the “Woman Life Freedom” uprising of 2022, and nine others have been arbitrarily executed following grossly unfair sham trials. The authorities have severely violated their fair trial rights and subjected many to torture and other ill-treatment, including beatings, electric shocks and sexual violence. Concerns of further protest-related executions are mounting amid an ongoing execution spree.

Head of judiciary, Gholamhossein Mohseni Ejei
c/o Embassy of Iran to the European Union, Avenue Franklin Roosevelt No. 15, 1050 Bruxelles, Belgium

I am gravely concerned that at least 15 people are at risk of the death penalty in connection with the “Woman Life Freedom” uprising of September-December 2022. Among them are at least eight individuals – Fazel Bahramian, Mahmoud Mehrabi, Mamousta Mohammad Khazrenejad, Manouchehr Mehmam Navaz, Mehran Bahramian, Mojahed (Abbas) Kourkouri, Reza (Gholamreza) Rasaei and Toomaj Salehi – currently under the sentence of death and at risk of execution following grossly unfair trials involving convictions on charges of “enmity against God” (moharebeh), “corruption on earth” (efsad-e fel arz) and “armed rebellion against the state” (baghi). On 23 January 2024, authorities arbitrarily executed Mohammad Ghobadlou, a youth with a mental disability, bypassing legal processes to deny him a retrial and implement his death sentence, even though the Supreme Court overturned his conviction and death sentence and ordered a retrial in July 2023. Amnesty International is aware of at least two others – Saeed Shirazi and Abolfazl Mehr Hossein Hajilou – who were tried on capital charges. At least five others are being investigated for capital crimes brought in relation to the protests, amid grave concerns about the imposition of death sentences on more individuals as authorities arrested and indicted thousands in connection to the uprising.

The aforementioned individuals have faced grossly unfair trials before Revolutionary Courts and/or Criminal Courts across the country including in the provinces of Alborz, Esfahan, Tehran, Kermanshah, Khuzestan and West Azerbaijan. Authorities violated their fair trial rights including the right to: adequate defence and access to lawyers of their choosing; the presumption of innocence; remain silent; meaningfully challenge the legality of their detentions; and receive a fair, public hearing. The courts have used torture-tainted “confessions”, some of which were broadcast on state media prior to their trials, to convict them. Methods of torture and other ill-treatment documented by Amnesty International against the aforementioned individuals include beatings, electric shocks, suffocation, sexual violence and deliberate denial of healthcare.

I urge you to immediately quash all convictions and death sentences stemming from the protests, refrain from seeking further death sentences and ensure that anyone charged with a recognizable criminal offence is tried in proceedings meeting international fair trial standards without recourse to the death penalty. I call on you to immediately and unconditionally release all those convicted and sentenced to death, indicted, or undergoing investigations solely for the exercise of their rights to freedom of expression, association and peaceful assembly. I further urge you to provide those detained access to their families and lawyers of their choosing, protect them from further torture and other ill-treatment and investigate torture allegations, bringing anyone found responsible to justice in fair trials. Finally, I urge you to grant independent observers access to capital trials and individuals on death row connected to protests and, more broadly, immediately establish an official moratorium on executions with a view of abolishing the death penalty.

Yours sincerely,
ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

The trials of individuals for capital offences in connection with the “Woman Life Freedom” uprising have borne no resemblance to meaningful judicial proceedings. Authorities have barred individuals from accessing any lawyers during the investigation phase and have also barred independently appointed lawyers from attending trial hearings and accessing their clients’ casefiles. The authorities have also fast-tracked capital cases, with courts using torture-tainted “confessions” to issue convictions.

Amnesty International has documented the torture and other ill-treatment of five out of the eight individuals under sentence of death to extract forced “confessions”. According to informed sources, during interrogations, authorities subjected Reza (Gholamreza) Rasaei to electric shocks, suffocation by placing a plastic bag over his head, prolonged suspension, severe beatings and sexual violence to compel his forced “confessions”. In October 2023, a Kermanshah province criminal court convicted him of “murder” and sentenced him to death, admitting torture-tainted forced “confessions” as “evidence”. In January 2024, the Supreme Court rejected his request for judicial review while disregarding exculpatory evidence, including on the flawed criminal investigations and the omission of forensic and other evidence, and key witness testimonies. He has now exhausted all available legal avenues to halt his execution and his death sentence has been sent for implementation. In April 2023, Iran’s judiciary announced that a Revolutionary Court in Ahvaz, Khuzestan province, sentenced Mojahed (Abbas) Kourkouri to death for “enmity against God”, “corruption on earth” and “armed rebellion against the state”. His grossly unfair trial was marred by torture-tainted “confessions” obtained while he was subjected to enforced disappearance.

Of the eight individuals under sentence of death, Toomaj Salehi was sentenced to death in April 2024 solely in relation to his participation in the “Woman Life Freedom” uprising and social media posts where he condemned the Iranian authorities’ oppression, executions and use of torture, and called for human rights and freedom for people in Iran. Mahmoud Mehrabi, who was arrested in February 2023 and released on bail on 16 March 2023 before being re-arrested several hours later, was sentenced to death for “corruption on earth” by Branch 5 of the Revolutionary Court of Esfahan according to a post on X by his lawyer on 5 May 2024. Two days later, on 7 May 2024, the judiciary’s Mizan News Agency announced that his conviction and death sentence were connected to the “Woman Life Freedom” uprising. An informed source told Amnesty International that Mahmoud Mehrabi had expressed support for the uprising in his social media posts and had also faced reprisals from the authorities for publicly criticizing corruption by local officials. In November 2022, a Revolutionary Court in Tehran convicted Manouchehr Mehran Navaz of “enmity against God” and sentenced him to death on allegations of setting fire to a state building during protests “with intent to confront the Islamic state”, in violation of international law which prohibits the death penalty for offences that do not involve intentional killing. The court issued his conviction and death sentence just two weeks after his grossly unfair trial started on 29 October 2022.

Amnesty International has also obtained the names of at least five others – Kamran Soltani, MohammadFarjl, Pouria Javaheri, Raouf Sheikh Maroufi and Reza Arabpour – who are in detention and are accused of, charged with or indicted on capital offences. The organization believes the number of individuals at similar risk is higher.

To date, the authorities have arbitrarily executed at least nine people in connection with the uprising after grossly unfair trials marred by torture allegations. Mohammad Ghabadlou, a 23-year-old wrestler with a mental disability, was unexpectedly and unlawfully executed on 23 January 2024, even though in July 2023 Branch One of the Supreme Court that had quashed his death sentence and ordered a retrial – a retrial that never took place after the Head of the Judiciary, Gholamhossein Mohseni Eje’l, intervened.

In the aftermath of the “Woman Life Freedom” uprising, the Iranian authorities have intensified their use of the death penalty to instil fear among the population and tighten their grip on power. In 2023, authorities carried out at least 853 executions, marking a 48% increase from 2022. In 2023, the authorities carried out seven protest-related executions: Mohammad Mehdi Karami and Seyed Mohammad Hosseini in January; Majid Kazemi, Saleh Mirhashemi and Saeed Yaghoubi in May; Milad Zohrevand in November, all in relation to the 2022 uprising; and Kamran Rezaei in November in relation to the November 2019 nationwide protests. The use of the death penalty has disproportionately impacted Iran’s oppressed Baluchi ethnic minority, who constitute about 5% of Iran’s population, yet accounted for 20% of all executions in 2023. In 2024, the Iranian authorities have continued their execution spree, including against ethnic minorities and dissidents, and carried out at least 250 executions until 20 May 2024, according to the Abdorrahman Boroumand Centre.
