

ANGOLA: A PROGRESS SHADOWED BY A SHRINKING CIVIC SPACE

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL:
SUBMISSION TO THE 48TH SESSION OF THE UPR WORKING GROUP, JAN-FEB 2025

SUMMARY

This submission was prepared ahead of the Universal Periodic Review (UPR) of Angola in January – February 2025. Amnesty International evaluates the implementation of recommendations made to Angola during its previous review, including in relation to the rights to freedom of expression, peaceful assembly and association, enforced disappearances, forced evictions and the right to an effective remedy. It ends with key recommendations which, if implemented, would contribute to improving the human rights situation in the country.

A few months after its 3rd cycle review,¹ the government of the Republic of Angola approved its 2018 – 2022 Human Rights Strategy,² while still serving its three-year term on the Human Rights Council (HRC).³ However, Amnesty International's analysis, covering 2020 – 2024, demonstrates that this was not matched by concrete improvements in the implementation of its human rights obligations and commitments.

FOLLOW UP TO THE PREVIOUS REVIEW

1. Out of 270 recommendations received at the previous review, Angola supported 259 and noted 11.⁴ Unfortunately, the country did not support recommendations that would contribute significantly to improving its human rights situation⁵. It did not accept to establish a human rights institution in line with the Paris Principles, nor to issue an open invitation to all special procedure mandate holders. It rejected recommendations to ratify the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court.
2. In positive developments, the government approved its human rights strategy, 2018-2022;⁶ the Plan to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking; and a new penal code, which explicitly criminalizes torture and other ill-treatment and entered into force in 2021⁷. The related code of criminal procedure voids evidence obtained through torture.⁸ As recommended by Germany,⁹ Angola joined the Extractive Industry Transparency Initiative (EITI) in June 2022.¹⁰ Angola adopted plans to advance the human rights of vulnerable groups,¹¹ particularly persons with albinism and persons with disabilities,¹² and LGBTI people.¹³ In August and September 2023, Angolan approved its plan for inclusion and protection of persons with albinism and with disabilities, respectively.¹⁴
3. Angola committed to stop infringing on the rights to peaceful assembly, association and freedom of expression.¹⁵ However, Angolan police (PNA) continued using excessive force including lethal weapon against protesters or bystanders, and arbitrarily arresting them, which in some cases resulted in death or injury.¹⁶
4. Angola supported three recommendations to ratify the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance.¹⁷ However, many people have been subjected to enforced disappearance during the review period. For instance, Mbapamuhuka Caçador, a five-year-old child, was forcibly disappeared after police raided the Mucubai Community in Ndamba area, in the outskirts of Moçâmedes city, Namibe Province, on 12 October 2022.¹⁸
5. Angola committed to carry out prompt, impartial and independent investigations into all allegations of torture and other ill-treatment and human rights violations committed by PNA and to end impunity.¹⁹ Under the period reviewed, the state failed to take steps to investigate allegations of torture, injuring and killing of activists, protesters and human rights defenders during protests and other violations by PNA.

THE NATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS FRAMEWORK

6. Angola's human rights framework includes the Constitution, national legislation, policies and bodies such as the Office of Ombudsman, as well as government ministries and departments. Angola has a reasonably high ratification rate of regional and international human rights treaties, but most of their provisions are not incorporated into domestic law.
7. Angola's Constitution safeguards human rights, although is silent on the rights of Indigenous people. However, its penal code²⁰ contain a number of provisions that restrict the rights to freedom of assembly and association contained in the Constitution²¹ and international human rights treaties to which Angola is a state party.²² Article 47 of the Angolan Constitution guarantees the right to "freedom of assembly and peaceful, unarmed demonstration without the need for any authorization", while Article 48 provides for the right to freedom of association, in line with Articles 21 and 22 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR).²³ However, article 4(2) of the Law on the Right to Assembly and Protest²⁴ provides the authorities with overly broad powers that are used to repress assemblies and protests that take place in unspecified public spaces that have not been "authorized".
8. In relation to women's rights, article 154 (4) of the Angolan Penal Code continues to criminalize those who receive abortions or deliver abortion materials of any sort. This contradicts article 14 (b) of the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Women in Africa (Maputo Protocol).²⁵

9. Article 24 (2) of the Family Code allows a 16-year-old boy, or 15-year-old girl, to marry under exceptional circumstances, which violates article 1 of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child and article 2 of the African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child.
10. The functioning of the Office of Ombudsman in Angola does not comply with the Paris Principles, mainly regarding its independence, available resources and effectiveness. Angola supported recommendations to strengthen the role and mandate of the Office in line with the Paris Principles but has not done so.²⁶

THE HUMAN RIGHTS SITUATION ON THE GROUND

Freedom of expression, peaceful assembly and association

11. Angolan judicial authorities continued to prosecute people who expressed themselves freely on political, economic and social developments in the country in unfair trials. On 13 August 2023, Neth Nahara was arrested by the Criminal Investigation Services in Luanda, Angola's capital, for a live stream from her TikTok account the day before which criticized the government and the president of Angola. On 14 August 2023, she was sentenced to six- months in prison for the crime of "outrage against the state, its symbols, and bodies". On 1 September 2023, the public prosecutor appealed to increase her sentence from six months to two years. Her lawyers were not given adequate time and facilities to prepare her defense as the court decided before the set deadline to challenge the appeal. On 27 September her sentence was increased to two years.²⁷
12. Angolan authorities continue to restrict the rights to peaceful assembly, association and freedom of expression,²⁸ particularly using article 4 (2) of the Law on the Right to Assembly and Protest to restrict people's right to peaceful assembly. On 24 October 2020, PNA put up barricades to prevent peaceful protesters against precarious living conditions and for municipal elections from gathering in Luanda. PNA arrested 103 protesters, including passers-by, journalists and mothers with children. 71 were convicted for the crime of "disobedience" and sentenced to one-month in prison, converted to fines.²⁹
13. Following the violent repression of a peaceful protest on 8 February 2021, the country's Criminal Investigation Service arrested José Mateus Zecamutchima of the Lunda Tchokwe Protectorate Movement. Accused of "association with evildoers and armed rebellion" and "leading the rebellion to overthrow the government", José was subjected to an unfair trial and imprisonment. He has often been denied contact with his lawyer and family.³⁰ On 30 May 2021, police in Cabinda arrested and detained several protestors after violently ending their procession and confiscating their personal items. The demonstration was part of a five-province protest against drought-induced hunger, unemployment and the unaffordable cost of living.³¹
14. On 16 September 2023, PNA arrested Adolfo Campos, Gilson Morreira,³² Hermenegildo Victor José,³³ Abraão Pedro Santos³⁴ for a solidarity protest with motorcycle taxi drivers who wanted to protest the limitation imposed by the government on their circulation in the main streets of Luanda, Angola's capital. They were all sentenced to two years and five months in prison on 19 September, for the crime of "disobedience and resisting orders".³⁵

Right to food and access to land

15. Corporate business operations continue to divert community land, which contributes to poverty.³⁶ Food insecurity in the southern provinces of Huíla, Cunene and Namibe persists, in part due to diversion of communal grazing land for commercial farming and prolonged drought.³⁷ The occupation of more fertile land by commercial farmers has undermined the economic and social resilience of pastoralist communities, particularly their ability to survive the drought. As a result, more than 10,000 people have crossed the border into Namibia, in search of food, water and essential services, such as healthcare, since 2021.³⁸

Forced eviction

16. Angolan authorities continued to evict residents illegally. On 27 February 2023, police officers, with the support of the Viana municipal police, demolished about 300 houses in Zango 3 neighborhood, section B in Luanda. Hundreds of people were left homeless. Residents who refused to leave their homes or gathered to protest were beaten and arrested. One resident, known only as Adilson, told human rights defenders that he was arrested and kept in a police station for five hours. According to residents, the demolitions, which intended to make way for a shopping complex, was carried out without adequate and reasonable notice and a genuine consultation with the affected. Furthermore, authorities have not provided adequate alternative housing to forced evictions victims to date.³⁹

Access to an effective remedy

17. Angolan law enforcement officers and criminal justice system failed to take steps to investigate allegations of torture, injuring and use of lethal weapons against protesters and human rights defenders and other violations committed by PNA. Between March and September, Amnesty International and OMUNGA documented cases of use of lethal weapons that resulted in at least ten deaths. The victims were Mário Palma Romeu, 14 years old, Altino Holandês Afonso, 15 years old, Helena Sebastião Mussunda, 15 years old, Mabiala Rogério Ferreira Mienandi, 15 years old, Clinton Dongala Carlos, 16 years old, João de Assunção Eliseu, 20 years old, António Vulola, 21 years old, Vanildo Sebastião Futa, 21 years old, José Quiocama Manuel, 25 years old and Sílvio Dala, 35 years old.⁴⁰ On 5 June 2023, five people, including a 12-year-old boy, were killed by PNA while eight others were injured during a protest against high price of fuel by taxi drivers in Huambo Province.⁴¹

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ACTION BY THE STATE UNDER REVIEW

Amnesty International calls on the government of Angola to:

Freedom of expression, peaceful assembly and association

18. Immediately repeal article 4 (2) of the law on the right to assembly, which interfere on the rights to freedom of expression, association and peaceful assembly.
19. Promptly allow independent media and journalists to operate in compliance with the Constitution, free from fear, harassment, intimidation, threats and violence.
20. Immediately end excessive and disproportionate use of force by the police in the context of protests, end arbitrary dispersal of peaceful assemblies, stop detaining individuals before protests as a way to thwart demonstrations, and fully respect, protect, promote and fulfil the rights to freedom of expression, peaceful assembly and association for all persons in Angola.
21. End all criminal proceedings that have been initiated against individuals in connection with the peaceful exercise of their right to freedom of peaceful assembly, and where these proceedings have resulted in conviction and fines and/or imprisonment, quash the conviction and drop the fines.

Enforced disappearances

22. Authorities must reveal the fate or whereabouts of individuals subjected to enforced disappearances following thorough, impartial, independent, transparent and effective investigations including the case of Mbapamuhuka Caçador, bring suspects to justice in fair trials, and provide the victims with access to justice and effective remedies.

Right to food and access to land

23. Take effective measures to ensure food security and protect and fulfil the right to adequate food for everyone, in terms of availability, accessibility and adequacy, without discrimination in any ground.
24. Immediately provide sustained and regular emergency food assistance and access to clean and safe water for domestic use and consumption and sanitation facilities in rural areas of Huíla and Cunene provinces.
25. Engage in a process of genuine consultation with members of the pastoralist communities, in collaboration with local civil society, and provide reparations to affected communities in accordance with domestic law and international standards, including providing effective remedies.
26. Work with civil society to demarcate all rural communal lands and issue communal title deeds for occupation, possession and rights of use, as decreed in article 37 of the Land Law (Lei 9/04) and in article 18 of Decree 58/07.

Forced eviction

27. End forced evictions and place a moratorium on mass evictions until such time as a comprehensive human rights-based housing policy and a legal framework that prohibits forced evictions, provides a minimum degree of security of tenure and human rights safeguards including effective remedies have been adopted.
28. Provide effective remedies to all victims of forced evictions including compensation for all losses. Ensure that adequate alternative housing is provided to all those who cannot provide for themselves.
29. Conduct a prompt, thorough, impartial, independent, transparent and effective investigation into the reports of excessive use of force by the police and private security guards based on international standards, including, in particular, the United Nations Basic Principles on the Use of Force and Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials and should include collection and analysis of all physical and documentary evidence and statements from witnesses. The conclusions of this investigation must be made public and those suspected to be responsible brought to justice in fair trials.

Access to an effective remedy

30. Conduct prompt, thorough, impartial, independent, transparent and effective investigations into allegations of killing, torture and other ill-treatment committed by police forces, particularly in context of protest, and bring suspected perpetrators to justice and provide access to justice and effective remedies to victims.
31. Adopt immediate and urgent measures to provide justice to victims of human rights violations related to unnecessary and excessive force by the police, including appropriate and adequate reparations for the families of the victims of lethal force.
