Amnesty International's delegation to visit the Dominican Republic

The team is there between 26 November and 4 December and is made up of Javier Zúñiga, Special Advisor, Chiara Liguori, Researcher and Robin Guittard, Campaigner. They will be meeting with representatives from civil society and authorities, including President Medina, to discuss the country's human rights situation.

In particular they will contribute to the debate on a comprehensive reform of the National Police by providing concrete proposals on how to make the police more effective and more respectful of human rights.

The delegation will host a press conference at the end of the visit, more details on this will be circulated shortly.
