Fiji: One year after the coup - what future for human rights?

Preparations for fresh elections after last year's violent coup attempt are being overshadowed by racism and government efforts to pursue racial supremacy for indigenous Fijians. What is the future for human rights in Fiji?

Amnesty International's Researcher on Australasia and the Pacific, Dr Heinz Schurmann-Zeggel, will discuss the organization's concerns at a media briefing in Suva:

10am, Friday 18 May 2001
