URGENT ACTION

11 BAHÁ’ÍS DISAPPEARED FOR MORE THAN 100 DAYS

On 25 May, armed Huthi forces stormed a peaceful gathering of Bahá’ís in Sana’a, Yemen. They detained and forcibly disappeared 17 individuals including five women and humanitarian workers. Following international pressure, six people were released— one man and three women in June, and two men in July. However, 11 individuals, nine men and two women, remain in Huthi custody and their whereabouts remain unknown. They are at risk of further violations at the hands of the Huthi authorities, including torture and other ill-treatment or even death. They must be immediately and unconditionally released.

Dear Mohamed Abdelsalam,

I am alarmed that 11 Bahá’í individuals, nine men and two women, remain forcibly disappeared by the Huthi de facto authorities following a raid on a peaceful gathering on 25 May 2023. This is another egregious violation of international human rights law in the Huthi de facto authorities’ ongoing persecution of the Bahá’í community—a religious minority in Yemen—in violation of their right to freedom of religion and belief.

Huthi de facto authorities detained 17 Bahá’í individuals in the raid. Days after the arrest of the Bahá’ís, the General Prosecutor denied a request for their release submitted by their lawyer. According to the lawyer, the authorities have failed to provide any information on where the Bahá’ís are being held and no lawyer has been able to communicate with them. I welcome your release of six individuals since then and call on you to immediately and unconditionally release all 11 detainees in your custody.

Among the 11 disappeared is Abdullah Al-Olofi, a father of four and a human rights activist who has led on programmes training activists on peaceful coexistence and freedom of religion and belief, as well as worked on improving the quality of humanitarian work during disaster response. Hassan Tariq Thabet, father to a two-year-old toddler, is a humanitarian worker who worked in food distribution with a Ministry of Education project, and championed the cause of children’s education and youth empowerment. Abdul’elah Muhammad Al-Boni, a father of two with another child on the way, is deeply involved in charity work and community service and has initiated projects aimed at fostering community harmony.

I am concerned that all remaining Bahá’í individuals in custody are at risk of further violations, including torture and other ill-treatment, forced confessions, and unfair trials on spurious and trumped-up charges that may carry the death penalty. Amnesty International has documented all these violations by the Huthi de facto authorities to crack down on individuals they perceive as opponents, including members of the Bahá’í community. Since their arrest, the Huthi authorities have incited violence and discrimination against this religious minority, which puts further individuals at risk of grave human rights violations.

I call on the Huthi de facto authorities to urgently disclose the fate and whereabouts of the 11 Bahá’í detainees in their custody and to immediately and unconditionally release them. I also call on you to end all forms of discrimination and persecution of the Bahá’í minority and all others who are targeted solely for the peaceful exercise of their right to freedom of religion and belief.

Yours sincerely,

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION
Since 2015, Amnesty International has documented the situation of 82 members of the Baha'i community in Yemen who have been detained by the Huthi de facto authorities and subjected to enforced disappearance, torture, incommunicado detention or denied the right to a fair trial.

Five Baha'is arrested in 2016 were held without charge or trial and without any means to challenge their detention for over two years, until they were charged in September 2018 with various serious offences including espionage for foreign states, some of which can carry the death penalty. Their trial was part of a mass trial involving 24 Baha'is in total – the other 19 were charged in absentia, including the teenage daughter of a Baha'i detainee. The Huthi de facto authorities ordered the release of all Baha'i prisoners in 2020 on the condition of their exile from the country. However, the charges against the 24 Baha'is have not been lifted.

A Baha'i prisoner of conscience, Hamid Haydara, was released in 2020 after his initial arrest in 2013. He was sentenced to death in 2018, and then pardoned in 2020. Amnesty International raised its concerns with the Huthi de facto authorities regarding the basis for his detention, as well as the deeply-flawed legal proceedings in his case, including prolonged pre-trial detention, undue delays in his trial, torture and other ill-treatment, and lack of access to counsel during his interrogations.

All parties to the armed conflict taking place in Yemen, including the Huthi forces, the internationally recognized government, the Sothern Transitional Council, Saudi Arabia led coalition and UAE-backed Yemeni forces have committed crimes under international law and human rights violations, including wilful killings, arbitrary detentions, enforced disappearances, torture and other ill-treatment, and unfair trials.
