Amnesty International to launch report on US drone strikes in Pakistan

On Tuesday 22 October 2013, Amnesty International will launch a major new report on the US drones program in Pakistan - "Will I be next? - US drone strikes in Pakistan".

The report is one of the most comprehensive studies about the US drone program from a human rights perspective. It includes detailed research into several recent drone strike killings in North Waziristan, which raise serious questions about violations of international law.

Advance copies of the report, press release and AV material are available on request. Launch venue for a press conference in Washington, DC to be confirmed.
