Fear for safety/ possible "disappearance"/ death threats

THAILAND

Somchai Neelapaijit (m), aged 52- human rights lawyer

---

Amnesty International is gravely concerned for the safety of Somchai Neelapaijit, a Muslim human rights lawyer who has not been seen since 12 March. It is feared that he may have been abducted by members of the security forces. Concern is heightened by his colleagues' reports that he had received anonymous death threats prior to his disappearance and by a recent Thai Human Rights Commission report that some of his Muslim clients have been severely tortured in police custody.

Somchai Neelapaijit is the Vice Chair of the Law Society of Thailand's Human Rights Committee and the Chairman of the Muslim Lawyers Association. Since receiving death threats, he had been regularly informing his colleagues and family of his whereabouts. He has not however, appeared at any of his appointments since his disappearance, nor has his family heard from him. Whilst Amnesty International welcomes the government's announcement that it is conducting an investigation into his disappearance, it calls for an increase in efforts to locate him.

Somchai Neelapaijit was providing legal assistance to nine Muslims accused of involvement in the violence against security forces in southern Thailand, which has resulted in the deaths of 50 people since the beginning of 2004. He has also led public efforts for the end of martial law in southern Thailand, which the government imposed in the wake of recent violent attacks against the security forces. Prior to his "disappearance", Somchai Neelapaijit had also been providing legal assistance to Muslims who were arrested for alleged involvement in Jemaah Islamiyah (JI), an Islamist group in Southeast Asia advocating violence.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

In the last three years human rights defenders in Thailand have faced increasing threats, intimidation, and harassment, particularly if they are members of minority groups. The recent disappearance of Somchai Neelapaijit has increased a climate of fear among human rights lawyers, community leaders and other human rights defenders. The print and broadcast media have also recently come under increasing pressure from the government not to publish articles critical of their policies.
