Further Information on UA 02/07 (MDE 14/001/2007, 04 January 2007) and follow-ups (MDE 14/003/2007, 15 January 2007; MDE 14/004/2007, 02 February 2007) - Imminent execution/possible death sentence

IRAQ Taha Yassin Ramadhan (m)

Former Iraqi vice-president Taha Yassin Ramadhan was sentenced to death on 12 February by the Supreme Iraqi Criminal Tribunal (SICT). The case will be referred back to the SICT's Appeals Chamber. However, since it was the Appeals Chamber that requested his previous sentence of life imprisonment to be increased, he is at risk of being executed within 30 days.

Taha Yassin Ramadhan received a life sentence on 5 November in connection with the execution of 148 people from the village of al-Dujail, north of Baghdad, after a failed attempt to assassinate the then president, Saddam Hussain, in 1982. However, on 26 December the SICT's Appeals Chamber referred the case back to the court, requesting a harsher sentence. According to the SICT's statute, death sentences have to be carried out within 30 days and those sentenced to death cannot be pardoned by the president.

Two of Taha Yassin Ramadhan's co-defendants, former Iraqi officials Barzan Ibrahim al-Tikriti and 'Awad Hamad al-Bandar, were hanged on 15 January. The third, Saddam Hussain, had been hanged on 30 December.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Since the reintroduction of the death penalty in Iraq in August 2004, scores of people have been sentenced to death and there has been a rapid rise in the number of executions, with at least 65 people put to death in 2006 alone, many of them after trials which may have been unfair.

On 11 February 2007 the Iraqi authorities announced that 14 people had been executed in "recent weeks" for murder, rape and kidnapping. Among them were Thanun Yunis Salim, reportedly for his involvement of the killing of 65 people, and Ahmad Hamad Hassan, who reportedly confessed to the bombing of a mosque in Babil province, south of Baghdad, which left 65 people dead. No further details are available.
