UNITED ARAB EMIRATES Sheikh 'Abd al-Mun'im al-'Ali, Iraqi national

Sheikh 'Abd al-Mun'im al-'Ali, a possible prisoner of conscience, has now been held in incommunicado detention for more than one year. Amnesty International is seriously concerned at his prolonged detention without charge or trial, and fears that he remains at risk of ill-treatment as long as he is held incommunicado.

Concern for Sheikh 'Abd al-Mun'im al-'Ali, who was arrested on 16 January 1995, is heightened by the fact that he is known to have suffered from diabetes and high blood pressure before his imprisonment. His continuing incommunicado detention can only exacerbate what health problems he may be suffering. In August 1995, he was reportedly taken to Abu Dhabi Military Hospital, although the reasons for his hospitalization at that time remain unclear.

There remains a further concern that Sheikh 'Abd al-Mun'im al-'Ali may be deported to Iraq, where he would be at risk of imprisonment, torture, "disappearance", the death penalty, or extrajudicial execution.

Sheikh 'Abd al-Mun'im al-'Ali and another man, 'Abd al-Jalil 'Ilwan, were arrested following raids on their homes in Sharjah by members of the State Security Police, who reportedly confiscated some of their books, personal papers and other documents. Amnesty International is concerned that they may have been arrested solely for the non-violent expression of their beliefs. 'Abd al-Jalil 'Ilwan was released in August 1995.
