GUNMEN THREATEN LOMAS DEL POLEO MAN

Armed men hired by a local landowning family threatened to kill a man living in an area called Lomas del Poleo, Chihuahua state, northern Mexico, on 2 February. The inhabitants of Lomas del Poleo are at risk of further such attacks.

On the morning of 2 February, seven armed men on horseback arrived at the house in Lomas del Poleo where Alfredo Piñón Valenzuela is living. One of the men pointed a gun at Alfredo Piñón and threatened to kill him. The group's leader, who works for the local landowner who claims to be the true owner of the land of Lomas del Poleo, told Alfredo Piñón, "Get the fuck out of this house or I will drag you out dead, because this land is mine." (te me vas a la chingada de ésta casa ó te saco muerto, porque éstas tierras son mías).

Alfredo Piñón Valenzuela has been living in his neighbour Adelaida Plasencia Sierra's house since she was attacked in December by men, who shot her, breaking one of her ribs. She has moved away from Lomas del Poleo, in fear of further attack. Alfredo Piñón had been staying in her house to make sure it is not destroyed by the landowner.

People living in Lomas del Poleo have been harassed and attacked by men working for a local landowner since 2003. In 2004 these men put up a barbed wire fence around the area, with an entrance patrolled by security guards working for the landowner. In 2005, according to people living there, the security guards set fire to 40 homes and beat a man to death. No more than 17 families still live in the area. They say they have told the local Public Prosecutor's office about what has happened, but no serious investigation has ever been carried out.

An Agrarian Tribunal has been considering the dispute over the ownership of the Lomas del Poleo land for several months, during which the people living there have suffered more threats and intimidation. The Tribunal will reach its conclusion shortly, and the recent threats are thought to have been an attempt to intimidate the people living in Lomas del Poleo into giving up their claim to ownership. Since the 4 December attack on Adelaida Plasencia Sierra, security guards have been approaching her two daughters' house and telling them the land is not theirs.
